

Styren 10742 Staff Impression

At 6'1", Styren makes a great first impression with his confident, put-together look. He has a long face with a high forehead, sharp cheekbones, and deep brown eyes. His medium-blond hair is styled neatly—professional enough for work but relaxed enough to be approachable. When he smiles, you notice right away—it's bright, straight, and genuinely warm. His smaller ears and balanced features give him a clean look, and he carries himself with a quiet confidence that doesn't feel forced.

Styren designs cities for work and loves exploring them in his free time, believing that sometimes the best adventures happen when you don't have a detailed plan. He writes short stories and poetry, often with a subtle sense of humor that might take a second to catch but is worth it when you do.

He's passionate about hiking and is always looking forward to discovering new trails with amazing views. The one thing that can keep him indoors is watching professional tennis—the only sport he really cares about. His favorite book is The Count of Monte Cristo, loving its themes of patience, strategy, and justice.

Whether he's designing spaces, writing, or exploring, Styren approaches life with curiosity and a sense of adventure, valuing both careful planning and spontaneous discovery.
