

Asturias 13209 Staff Impression

Asturias is creative, curious, well-grounded, and approachable. He has dark, naturally curly hair and brown eyes. A Roman nose, neatly trimmed mustache, and a few understated accessories give him a whimsical look. His face is friendly with a broad, full-lipped smile and rounded cheeks with high cheekbones. He has a well-proportioned, medium build.

He is studying computer science and enjoys using technology to create experiences that bring people together, which is why he is especially interested in game development, where coding, storytelling, art, music, and collaboration all intersect.

Outside the classroom, he enjoys staying active through running, strength training, and other sports he has participated in over the years. He loves games of all kinds, from video games to board and card games, and enjoys activities that combine strategy with connection. Music has been a lifelong pursuit. He played cornet in school ensembles, taught himself piano, and later picked up guitar. One of his favorite skills is learning songs by ear and figuring out the chords without needing sheet music.

Loved ones think of him as caring, thoughtful, organized, and funny. Growing up in several different regions taught him how to adapt, connect with many kinds of people, and feel at home in a variety of settings. Through all those moves, his family remained his constant source of support and inspiration. His decision to become a donor reflects those values and his hope of helping others experience the joy and meaning that family has brought to his own life.
