Ruslan is slim with masculine, angular features. His complexion is light to medium with a warm tone and clear, even skin. His face is oval and medium in length, and square through the jaw. A dark, short beard hugs his cheeks and chin, and it blends into a tidy mustache. His hair is dark brown, almost black in certain light. The sides are cropped close, with more length on top, and there's a slight wave and texture to it. His brows are gently arched, and his medium brown eyes are almond-shaped. His nose is medium-sized with a rounded tip, and his lips are of average fullness. He has a casual, practical style.

Ruslan's bachelor's degree is in radio technology, and he now works as a Software developer. He played soccer for many years and still loves it, whether he's playing or watching. Boxing, gym training, hiking, and table tennis round out his exercise routine. He plays guitar and once performed at school events, which helped him get comfortable speaking in front of people. He enjoys traveling and exploring various cultures, and he speaks several languages. One thing still on his list is seeing Mount Kilimanjaro in person, close enough to feel its scale.

Ruslan chose to donate because he wants to help people and do something meaningful. Down the road, he hopes for rewarding work, an active lifestyle, a family, and the interests that make life feel full.
